This Week: Grahame - RUTH #4

Today brings the story of Ruth and Naomi to a conclusion. Boaz marries Ruth and together they have a son whom Naomi cares for. Finally, Naomi who was convinced God was against her has a real blessing on her life. Further, the genealogy at the end of the book points out that their son, Obed, is the grandfather of King David. There is also a book in the Bible named after him. No wonder this is often called one of the best stories ever written.

At the root of this story is hesed. This rich term enables us to act with loyalty, love, and compassion. When this is combined with integrity as we see with Boaz, it's a powerful ethic. We can learn much from Boaz because we live in a world that demands to get its own way and is often more than willing to bypass any ethical issue that stands in its way. May her story inspire you to strengthen your relationships and trust in God's faithfulness no matter what you face.

You can collect a copy of the sermon notes from the foyer on Sunday mornings, or download them from our website www.ranuibaptist.org.nz
